

Paul Trahar

I am the father of Amelia Trahar who attends Booth Wood School. I myself am an ex-pupil of Booth Wood and therefore have always had an interest in how the school progresses.

I have previously been self-employed for a number of years as a picture framer and have had an active interest in design mediums and as such, been involved in projects with Loughborough College and Loughborough Endowed Schools.

I currently work at East Midlands Airport as a specialist airfield driver.

I was elected onto the governing body as a parent governor in 2017 and am a member of the Premises Sub Committee. I meet twice a year with the teachers who co-ordinate Art and Design and Religious Education.
